

Global Justice Networks: Geographies of Transnational Solidarity (Paperback)

By Paul Routledge, Andrew Cumbers

MANCHESTER UNIVERSITY PRESS, United Kingdom, 2016. Paperback. Condition: New. Reprint. Language: English . Brand New Book. This book provides a critical investigation of what has been termed the global justice movement . Through a detailed study of a grassroots peasants network in Asia (People s Global Action), an international trade union network (the International Federation of Chemical, Energy, Mining and General Workers) and the Social Forum process, it analyses some of the global justice movement s component parts, operational networks and their respective dynamics, strategies and practices. The authors argue that the emergence of new globally-connected forms of collective action against neoliberal globalisation are indicative of a range of place-specific forms of political agency that coalesce across geographic space at particular times, in specific places, and in a variety of ways. Rather than being indicative of a coherent movement , the authors argue that such forms of political agency contain many political and geographical fissures and fault-lines, and are best conceived of as global justice networks : overlapping, interacting, competing, and differentially-placed and resourced networks that articulate demands for social, economic and environmental justice. Such networks, and the social movements that comprise them, characterise emergent forms of trans-national political agency....
