When diversion orders are filed after the car arrives at its destination, railroads make a charge for diverting. A record of location is accomplished in two ways: first, by keeping a car record before you and having a fairly close knowledge of the schedule of the train service over the route; second, by securing passing reports from your local railroad or from the traveling agents of the foreign lines. Some small shippers keep this record on the outside of an envelope containing the various records of the shipment, such as manifest, invoice, bill of lading, etc., while others have a form for the record printed upon a stiff card, convenient for filing, as shown...
