Forgotten Books. Paperback. Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. 438 pages. Dimensions: 9.0in. x 6.0in. x 0.9in. Excerpt from Marine Boiler Management and Construction: Being a Treatise on Boiler Troubles and Repairs, Corrosion, Fuels and Heat, on the Properties of Iron and Steel, on Boiler Mechanics, Workshop Practices and Boiler Design The results of experimental researches into a variety of subjects are accumulating which affect either directly or indirectly the management or construction of boilers; these have been referred to in the various chapters of this edition. Thus amongst physical researches may be mentioned Stefan and Boltzmanns law of radiation which scorns to explain why the high temperature flames which are associated with perfect combustion lead to furnace troubles, then there are Nicholsons experiments on the influence of the spoed of a gas on its heat transmission, Cokers optical measurements of strains, and my own experiments on fatigue of metals-as yet unpublished-on brittleness caused by the presence of nitrogen in steel, and on water hammers in steam pipes. Hcyn and Bauers exhaustive experiments on corrosion have also been carefully summarised in this work. On account of the increasing use of wrought iron and steel instead of copper for steam pipes, a new chapter has been added on this subject. It reviews all available experiments on the losses of pressure due to friction and to radiation, explains the methods of manufacture and discusses steam pipe explosions, of which about two hundred have been reported upon by the Board of Trade as being due either to water hammer, to inelastic arrangement or to bad material. The question of elasticity of pipe bends has necessitated the addition of a few mathematical remarks on curved beams, and a comparison of these with Prof. Butlins valuable experiments on full sized pipes. They were found to...
