Not illustrated. 1897 Excerpt: .Dynamics proportion to their mass, and this law prevails to a great f extent in the business world. The merchant seeks a mar ket for his purchases where immense stocks are carried, BtSinCSS. atl(j his choice is unfettered by any limitation but that of his own credit. No matter how favorably suuated a place may be, it can not control trade unless its merchants are in a position to meet every demand made upon them. Tucson is no more favorably situated than several other points in Southern Arizona, but the appreciation of the dynamical law referred to has given it control of the trade of this section. Our merchants realize the nature of their supremacy, and the visitor who has not closely considered the conditions, marvels at the immense stocks of merchandise they carry. The maintenance of this tenure, however, depended for years upon one firm exclusively, and to their capital and enterprise must be imputed its present existence. The origin of the firm of L. Zeckendorf Co. dates from 1854, but the present establishment was founded fourteen years later. For over twenty years it has been under the immediate management of Mr. Albert Steinfeld, the resident partner, to whose energy and ability is due the prosperity of the house and its present high reputation for enterprise and integrity. The senior partner, Mr. L.ouis Zeckendorf, resides permanently in New York, and handles the Eastern business of the house. The Tucson establishment is located on the...
